We sleep in different ways and at different times. The habit of sleeping in bed is not expensive, it is comfortable. But in parts of Asia and Africa the nights are so warm that people sleep comfortably without any cover at all. Whether we spend our nights in a bed or not, sleeping takes up about a third of our lives. The amount of sleep that we need however, varies greatly with age. New born babies, for example, sleep for about twenty hours each day. By the age of twelve years, about ten hours of sleep each night is enough. Adults usually need only seven to eight hours. Old people sometimes say that they hardly sleep at all, but you have, no doubt, noticed they are good at taking little naps as they sit in the sunshine.

23) New born babies sleep for _____ hours.
